/Benjamin E Lanier/ Primary Examiner, Art Unit 2432 Continuation of 11. does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because: Applicant argues, "Bramhill discloses only two levels of control...Bennill discloses a copy protection scheme wherein data is either not protected or wherein data is only protected, i.e., all of the available copy controls are either enabled or disabled...the presently claimed subject matter, there are at least three levels of control. This argument is not persuasive because Bramhill discloses at least three levels of control because Bramhill discloses a first level where it is determined whether or not the user will be able to access (i.e. read) the content based upon an initial payment (Page 11, lines 1-19). Bramhill goes on to discuss that if the user is permitted to access the content based upon this initial payment, the user would be able to save the content ould be save in the protected format. This represents three levels of "content control" as claimed.
